Latest Flight Into Stratosphere Fails, Leaky Valve Blamed

Super-Balloon Blows 4,000 Feet and Then Bursts, Landing in Chicago Railroad Yards—Commander Settle Not Injured—Wm. Try Again.

Chicago, Aug. 3 (AP).—Man's latest attempt to pierce the earth's atmosphere at a greater height than ever before ended abruptly early this morning when Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle came to earth in a Chicago railroad yards. A leaky valve was blamed.

The huge balloon, "The Century of Progress," in which the commander hoped to break existing altitude records and obtain valuable scientific data heretofore unknown to man, descended within about ten minutes after the hop-off at Soldier Field.

Lieut. Commander Settle was not injured, and the balloon which had risen to a height of approximately 4,000 feet was apparently not seriously damaged when it landed in the yards of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad at 14th and Canal streets. There was a small dent in the bottom of the gondola, however, and it was possible that the bag itself was damaged.

Commander Settle said a further inspection would be necessary to determine the exact extent of the damage. He appeared happy over the fact that the apparent damage was so extensive and expressed hope for another trial even before Navy men, his ground crew and others, had the bag packed up.

"I have hopes of attempting the ascent again," he said. "After repairs have been made to the balloon and weather conditions have been checked for a favorable occasion."

The commander's wife was among the first to reach his side and kissed him repeatedly, joyful that he had escaped unscathed.

"I arose to an altitude of about 4,000 feet," the commander said, "and opened a valve to level off. I wished to stay at that height for a while. The valve, however, stuck, and the balloon started down. I started to bailast out, but the balloon continued its descent and could not be righted."

In all Commander Settle tossed overboard 55 bags of ballast, each of which weighed 40 pounds, after his bailout at 2:05 a. m. (CST) but the bag continued to drop.

Hundreds of people hurried by automobile to the spot where the balloon came down. They jammed around the balloon and seriously interfered with attempts of the police to keep order. One man was badly injured in the melee. He was unidentified. Attaches of a hospital said it was doubtful if he would recover.

The milling crowd including persons smoking, menaced the highly inflammable gas bag.

More shocked, perhaps, than Commander Settle himself, was Raymond Thomas, yardman for the Burlington Railroad.

He had not known of the flight until the big balloon almost landed on top of him. He said:

"I didn't know whether the world was coming to an end or not—but I stepped all trains anyway."

First to reach the fallen balloon was David Cohen, a cab driver. He said Commander Settle's first words, as he popped his head out of the gondola, were:

"I'm okay. Call my wife."

He then excitedly waved away the first to arrive shouting:

"Get those cigarettes away. Keep all fire away!"

Three railroad men grabbed ropes and tied the balloon to the tracks.

The huge hydrogen bag, made up virtually of an acre of rubber, was only a little more, than half inflated when it rose from Soldier Field.

The gas filled the top, which towered a height equal to fifteen stories. The envelope folds hung from this inflated portion to the bottom of the bag which was 25 feet above the gondola.

The envelope darted into the air as soon as its moorings were cut, but it had gone only a little more than 5,000 feet when it began gliding downward on a level. So low was the balloon that it soon was out of reach of the searchlights.

While the crowd was pouring out of the stadium, seeking to get to the street where the balloons might be seen, it disappeared over the towers of the loop. Within a moment it was learned the bag had fallen.

French Fliers on Transatlantic Flight to Set a Distance Record

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP).—A transatlantic flight "to nowhere" began today when Lieut. Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, French aviators, took off from Floyd Bennett Field at 4:41 a. m., eastern standard time, in an attempt to set a distance record.

They planned to cross the ocean by way of Cape Sable, N. S., and the great circle route and then "just keep going." Persia, Africa, or Russia may be their landing place, they indicated, but they would prefer to land in Karachi, India. Their direction after reaching the Scilly Islands, off the English coast, will be determined by weather.

The record they seek to smash is 5,340 miles, set last February by Squadron Leader Oswald R. Gayford and Flight Lieutenant Gilbert E. Nicholls of the British royal air force. They flew from Cranwell, England, to Walfield Bay, Southwest Africa.

The monoplane of Rossi and Codos is called the "Joseph Le Brix" in honor of the famous French flier who was killed in 1931 and it carried 1,770 gallons of gasoline. This tremendous load led observers to fear a crash on the takeoff, and as a result city and U. S. Navy fire apparatus was assigned to the field, along with police emergency squads.

The take-off, however, was perfect and a small crowd cheered as the plane soared away over Jamaica Bay. The Frenchmen were grimly silent and businesslike as they climbed into their ship. They carried an elaborate food supply, prepared by a French chef. It included five boned chickens, two quarts of chicken consommé, 36 oranges, 24 bananas, 24 lemons, eight bottles of water and seven quarts of black coffee.

Their ship—a $100,000 craft with a four-bladed propeller, has a 34-meter short wave set, Cal F—ALCC, with which they planned to maintain wireless communication with Paris and other points.

Rossi is an officer in the French Aviation Corps. He is 32 years old, married, and lived in Paris. He was a war flier and has 3,000 hours' flying to his credit. On this flight he is navigating and is serving as radio operator and co-pilot.

Codos is a commercial flier stationed at Le Bourget Field and also is married with a home in Paris. He is 37 years old, learned to fly after the war, in which he served in the infantry and artillery, and has 6,000 hours in the air.

Their plane has a narrow body with enormous wings. On the silver sides of the fuselage are painted French and American flags. On the rudder is "Bleriot 110."

Secretary Hull Pays Visit To Roosevelt, Denies He Will Resign

Secretary of State Believes Economic Conference Will Accomplish Much—Will Go to Washington on Sunday.

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull returned from London today and went immediately to Hyde Park to see President Roosevelt, with no intention of resigning "now or hereafter."

The secretary, who is chairman of the American delegation to the world monetary and economic conference now in recess, arrived on the steamer President Harding and was taken to the summer White House in an automobile.

Congressman S. D. McNoy, chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs and also a member of the American delegation, accompanied Hull.

Hull met reporters at Quarantine with a prepared statement in which he said that "to preach the failure and futility of the world economic conference at this premature stage, would be to preach a gospel of despair."

Later, he stood in the writing room of the ship and answered most of the questions put to him frankly and sincerely.

"The conference, despite any confused reports about its status," he said, "is still alive and has a thoroughly virile and comprehensive organization to direct its affairs during the recess period."

"The conference can be depended upon to go forward with such progress as the nature and extent of the difficulties would permit. They have been piling up in every part of the world for 12 years with the natural result that correspondingly more time is necessary to consider and solve them."

The secretary said he planned to spend the day and tonight with the President at Hyde Park, and to go to Washington tomorrow.

FIVE PRISONERS FACED JUDGE CULLOTON TODAY

In city court this morning five prisoners were arraigned before Judge Bernard A. Culloton and their cases were disposed of as follows:

William Enlist, 19, of 130 Hasbrouck avenue, arrested early this morning, charged with disorderly conduct for disorderly conduct drew a five days' suspended sentence. The charge was that he solicited food at the restaurant, saying that someone else had sent him for it.

George Barringer, 45, of 20 Chapel street, in the Wilbur section of Kingston, was sentenced to 30 days in jail for disorderly conduct. Twenty days were suspended because he had a family, but in the event that he does not keep peace in the neighborhood, he will have to serve the full time.

Barringer was arrested by Patrolman William Reardon and Clarence Brophy, Friday on a warrant sworn out by Henry Higgins, who charged that he used indecent language and was boisterous.

Thomas Malla, 53, of Port Ewen, arrested downtown yesterday by Officer Peter Keresman, who was forced to take him into custody on a charge of public intoxication, received a suspended sentence of 30 days. Malla promised he would not be brought to court again for a long time.

John Frain, 41, arrested yesterday for pandering, was sentenced to jail for 10 days, and the serving of the time suspended, provided he leaves Kingston immediately. He thanked the judge and hurried out of the city hall. Thomas Gorman, 75, who was with Frain, was sent to jail for 10 days to get a rest and food. Both men were arrested on Brewster street by Officers Fred Stoudt and Clarence Brophy on a complaint.

CHARGED WITH PLACING TEAR GAS IN EXCHANGE

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—Eugene S. Daniell, Jr., of Somerville, Mass., was placed under arrest today on a charge of placing the tear gas bombs that resulted in the closing of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday.

Daniell was picked up by bomb squad detectives in a mid-town hotel this morning for questioning and taken to police headquarters. He is 26 years old.

The tear gas bombs were placed in the ventilator intakes in the Stock Exchange building yesterday and flooded the trading floor of the exchange with fumes that drove brokers and Stock Exchange attaches to the streets for air. The gassing occurred at 12:15 and caused the closing of the exchange for the day. As today previously had been declared an exchange holiday, the stock market will not open until Monday morning.

Man Reported Dead By Police In Crash Alive; Badly Hurt

Lewis Janowitz in Serious Condition Following Saugerties Road Accident—Was Reported Dead by Kingston Police Department.

Lewis Janowitz, 26, of the Bronx, New York city, was reported as still in a critical condition at the Kingston Hospital this morning. He is the man who the Kingston police department had reported as one of the dead in the Saugerties road crossing fatality on Friday morning and his death was reported in the account of the accident.

The two who were fatally injured and died at the Kingston Hospital were Olive Johnson, 14, of North Bergen, N. J., who died about 5 o'clock Friday morning and Jerry Viale, 18, of Guttenberg, who died about a quarter of an hour later.

At the Kingston Hospital this morning it was stated that the condition of Harry E. Weiss, 33, of West New York, driver of the Graham Paige car that was struck by a passenger train on the railroad crossing, was fair, but that Janowitz's condition was serious.

Mrs. Agnes Johnson, mother of the dead girl, after having cuts on her leg treated, was able to leave the hospital Friday morning.

According to the story as obtained by Deputy Sheriff Abram Molyseaux, Weiss was on his way from Cairo to North Bergen and as he approached the railroad crossing on the Saugerties road he noticed that the crossing gates were being lowered and applied the brakes to his car, which swerved and crashed through the gates and was struck by the southbound passenger train.

Albany Newsdealer Murdered in Store

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP).—George Bursick, 78-year-old newsdealer, is dead and an unidentified boy-bandid is in a critical condition as a result of a gun battle last night in the back room of a Hudson avenue store which two youths attempted to hold up.

The other youth, said to be about 16 years old, fled.

The young hoodlums entered the newsroom shortly after dark when Bursick was alone. The aged man snatched a revolver and opened fire when they followed him to the back room where he lived.

He fired twice. The first shot struck the wall above their heads. The second felled one of the boys. The other youth shot the newsdealer in the head when his pal dropped to the floor. A few persons nearby saw him fleeing.

The wounded bandit was trying to get to his feet in the doorway when a passerby saw him and called the police. Bursick was found beside his bed.

He was robbed three times within a month last winter, losing only a small amount each time.

"Next time I'll get them," he told police after the third holdup.

Tropical Hurricane Causes Damage

Brownsville, Tex., Aug. 3 (AP).—Wreckage of damaged homes and buildings littered the countryside and cities of the lower Rio Grande valley today as residents sought to determine if there was loss of life from a brief tropical hurricane.

Point Isabel and Brownsville, at the mouth of the Rio Grande, were directly in the path of last night's storm, which swept inland from the gulf at a velocity of nearly 80 miles an hour, blew for two hours, then veered suddenly and lunged southward into Mexico.

The principal concern was felt for 25 or 30 persons marooned in Col. Sam Robertson's Del Mar Hotel, on Brownsville Island, and for 19 or 20 persons stranded at the government station on Padre Island. Communication with both islands was severed late yesterday when the gales reached a force of 70 miles an hour and heavy seas inundated the greater portions of the islands—two long narrow sand bars which rise a feet above sea level and stretch for miles along the coast.

Thurin, Well Known Plumber, Died Today

Autopsy Will Be Performed to Determine Cause of Death—Was at Home of Friend—Well and Favorably Known.

Otto Thurin, well known plumber, who lived at 19 Smith avenue, died suddenly this morning at the home of a friend, Oscar W. Caunitz, 43 Levan street. The cause of death was to be determined by an autopsy performed at the Kingston Hospital by Dr. Chester B. Van Gaasbeck and Dr. Joseph Jacobson.

According to the report of Coroner W. Norman Conner, who was called on the case, Mr. Thurin and his wife had spent the night at the Caunitz home. Mr. Thurin arose about 6 o'clock and went downstairs to the living room. After he had been there a short time other occupants of the house heard him fall.

Going to the living room they found him on the floor, fully clothed. He was breathing but was in very weak condition.

Dr. Van Gaasbeck was called, and found Mr. Thurin beyond medical aid. He died shortly after the arrival of the physician and Coroner Conner was notified. The coroner called the police department and he and Sergeant James V. Simpson went to the Caunitz home to investigate.

The coroner had no official report to give up until noon, pending the autopsy to be performed and which was delayed because Mrs. Van Gaasbeck and Jacobson were busy with patients at the hospital.

Mr. Thurin's death will come as a shock to many in Kingston and vicinity. He was a very popular man not alone in business circles but in fraternal matters and athletics. Mr. Thurin conducted a plumbing business, prior to entering which he worked for other contractors of this city. He was a member of the Joyce-Schrick Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Kingston Council, Knights of Columbus, having held high offices in both organizations.

Earlier in life Mr. Thurin was interested in athletics, especially basketball, and played with St. Peter's team in the old city league. Although not as active in sports of late he still played and took part in games only last winter. He was 37 years of age, according to the city census record which states he was born in 1896.

Survivors are his wife, formerly Bertha Beesmer; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thurin; three brothers, Harry, Charles and Fred; and two sisters, Mrs. Herbert Engle and Miss Florence Thurin of Kingston. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP).—One State Trooper was injured so badly that he may die, and five others, including Captain Stephen McGrath, hero of the 1929 Auburn Prison riots, were less seriously hurt, in hand to hand fighting with striking milk producers at Oriskany, scene of a famous revolutionary battle.

President Ends Coal Field Strike

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt in his drive for national recovery has won a truce in the western Pennsylvania coal strike.

In a dramatic midnight conference with his industrial administrator, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, the President put his approval early today on an agreement to end strife that had flared into violence and led to a fear that it would tie up American factories and hamper the recovery program.

The agreement provides for a board of three men named by the President to settle disagreements pending the establishment of working codes for the troubled coal industry.

Mr. Roosevelt promptly appointed Gerard Swope, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company; Louis Kirstein, Boston merchant; and George Berry, president of the Pressmen's Union with headquarters in Tennessee, as members of the board.

So, today 70,000 men who have been on strike and fighting attempts of others to replace them go back to the mines to help supply the fuel to put American industry in operation.

Happy over this solution of one of the most vexing labor disputes to confront the country in recent years, the President today seriously pondered the establishment of a general policy to prevail for all industries during the recovery campaign.

Strikes In Havana Continue to Spread

Havana, Aug. 3 (AP).—Despite governmental threats to fight strikes with martial law and bans on union meetings, truck drivers, messenger boys, and tobacco workers joined more than 24,000 other employees today in strikes that kept most industrial activity at a standstill.

With the right to meet peacefully revoked, further organization of the strike movement, in which various groups seek lower operating fees and increased income, went forward in secret under the direction of a central committee, with headquarters in suburban Cero.

Many prominent Cubans professed to see a political implication in the walkouts, which began quietly 11 days ago, especially in view of a presidential manifesto saying some acts of strikers were seditious.

R. R. Must Keep an Agent at Ulster Park

Albany, Aug. 2.—A petition of the New York Central Railroad Company for the abrogation of an order denying the application of the company for authority to discontinue the services of an agent at its Ulster Park station on the West Short Division of the railroad in Ulster county, has been denied by the Public Service Commission.

The order denying the company's request for the abrogation of a previous order denying a petition to discontinue the Ulster Park station agent is the result of a rehearing held on the company's application. The Commission has also denied the railroad company's request for a change in the previous order which would permit a part time agent to be in charge of the Ulster Park station. At the original hearings it appeared that if the company's request for permission to discontinue the agent were granted it did not propose to employ a caretaker at the station, but at the rehearings it was stated that the company would employ a caretaker.

It was clear from the evidence received that if the agent at Ulster Park station were discontinued and a caretaker substituted, there would be a number of respects in which the public would be greatly inconvenienced, and in view of all the circumstances it did not appear that the employment of a caretaker would be at all commensurate with the inconvenience which would result from the discontinuance of the agent.

The company proposed to have the agent at Esopus go over to the Ulster Park station a portion of each day and throughout the hearings the question arose as to the relative importance of Ulster Park and Esopus stations, it being contended on the part of the Ulster Park shippers that the Ulster Park station is the more centrally located and the more important from their standpoint, and the question arose as to why the company proposed to discontinue the agent at Ulster Park instead of at Esopus. The answer made was that the application was based on the earnings at Ulster Park as compared with those at Esopus. It appeared that while the earnings at Ulster Park station were less in 1932 than at Esopus station there are many more shippers at Ulster Park station than at Esopus.

It appeared that business at Ulster Park, Esopus and Port Ewen could be easily diverted to Ulster Park and if this were done and all business at three stations totaled and divided by three there would be sufficient to warrant an agent at all three stations. In view of these facts the commission denied the application to change its order.

SWEETENING

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

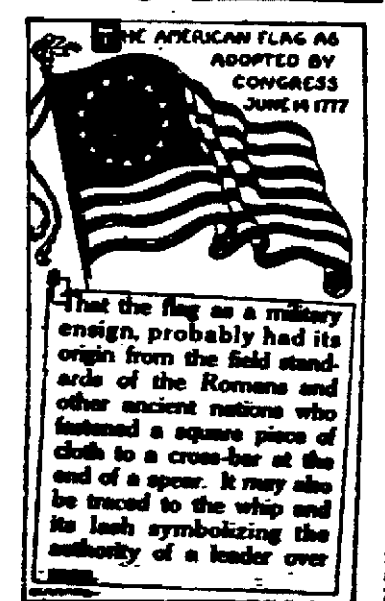

WE NEED a recipe for living. We need another cookbook giving the rules successfully to make a life as well as mix a cake. We have our rules for dough and batter. But living is another matter. Yet there is not another thing that needs so much of sweetening.

Ah, yes, with living, as with cooking. We need a little forward looking. Let's study living for awhile. And with our labor mix a smile. When life is rather tasteless, it'll be wise to sweeten it a little. There's really not another thing Life needs as much as sweetening.

We have our customs culinary. Yet more than that is necessary. We need another recipe: To sweeten life with sympathy. To comfort hearts, to brighten faces. And sweeten home and other places. In life, like any other thing, Put in a little sweetening.

DO YOU KNOW?

That the flag as a military ensign, probably had its origin from the field standards of the Romans and other ancient nations who fastened a square piece of cloth to a cross-bar at the end of a spear. It may also be traced to the whip and its lash symbolizing the authority of a leader over his men.

For Bad Name Undeserved The reputation of the fox as a predatory murderer and a larceny thief has been greatly exaggerated, according to a two-year study made in Michigan. The conclusions reached indicate that except for an occasional rabbit and a still more occasional bird of prey, the fox's bad name as a robber and killer has been rather undeserved. —New York Times.

Very few educated people are unwise enough to become educators. One-half million believers profess Christianity in Syria, largely due to the French. A nation's power depends on the physical strength and character of its women, and not on its army of men or its statesmen. No wonder astrologers sometimes made mistakes in telling your fortune. There's a newly discovered planet they didn't figure on. Daily Warning for Miners The workmen at a South Wales colliery are assembled daily before they descend into the diggings to listen to some words of warning with the hope of preventing accidents to themselves and fellow workmen. The proprietors claim that this relieves them of a certain amount of responsibility, but it is doubtful, for this same message being repeated day after day soon fails to make any impression on the men. It is an old story and they pay little attention to it. All the various forms of accidents common to mine workers are enumerated and the men are told to avoid certain performances which are attended by risk. The list starts off with the injunction to leave all matches at the surface.

Muskies Store Air The Saginaw river muskrats are remarkably intelligent animals, according to a naturalist who told of their antics at a meeting of the Saginaw Rotary club, says the Detroit News. One of the most unbelievable feats of these animals is the way in which they provide themselves with air while swimming under the ice in winter. The muskrats will take a deep breath before diving under the ice on the river's surface. They will then emit part of this air to form a bubble under the ice and after swimming around a while return to this bubble when they feel the need of more air.

Initials on Early Coins The initials of the moneyers began to appear on coins during the period 217-197 B. C. First there were only symbols, then initials, then abbreviations and finally the full name of the moneyers. The denarius entered on its career as a world currency about 212 B. C. The coinage of large bronze pieces ceased and all that is carried over into the following century is a small range of bronze coinages of south Italian towns. Later bronze issues in 45 B. C. were the work of provincial governors and follow various standards.

Most Primitive Ant Found What is regarded as the most primitive ant ever found was discovered by an amateur collector in western Australia and sent to the National Museum in Melbourne. It is called a "living fossil" because it is almost identical with a fossil ancestor of the ant family which became extinct probably before man appeared on earth.

FASHIONS BY ELEANOR GUNN

The Fall Fashion Show
Premiere to Be a Period
One of the Late Nineteenth Century

Fashions now as always move in cycles, and while those of another day and age may be revised how are we going to manage reaching the feminine types who were then? Certainly the women of today do not look very much like the women of the past, and those who presided with stately grace through the Peacock Alley.

Women accustomed to the freedom of skirts to the knees, or thereabouts, find it something of a problem to acquire the graceful carriage necessary to the trailing skirts which were so important a detail of the Gay Nineties. Yet Paris seems determined to revive the elegance of that period, so the best we can do is to take ourselves in hand and determine to look like the perfect ladies of those days.

Fortunately we are allowed our hours off. We may still wear short skirts and simple hats for business and so on. But even the hats are poking forward as they did in those days and are daring to be trimmed, which has been unheard of for over so long. For evening, our skirts must touch and even brush the polished floors as of yore, and we must wear mousquetaire gloves and decorated shoulders, and be as exquisite as beautiful fabrics and lovely jewels can make us.

Perhaps it is all part of the new deal program and will make for better business. But in the meantime many a woman is trying to reconcile the idea of all this elegance with her curtailed budget. Designers most certainly have inflated ideas all right.

The answer to the problem of how to dress as elegantly as fashion desires on "nothing a year" is to have fewer clothes and to give more thought to their selection. Fortunately the accessories are not prohibitive in price and are invaluable in inflating the wardrobe. One should use great precaution to avoid ultra styles that are sure to be short lived. Buy wisely and you will be rewarded.

It won't be long now before we will have a glimpse of those models that are being cabled about from the Paris openings, and we may then compare them with those that are being shown here by native talent. The critics seem to be of one mind, that it is a good show.

STATELINESS COMES INTO FASHION

One of a numerous group of soft, flowing gowns, this Malsbacher model has large flowers in delicate tones of gray, mauve and pink, on a ground of light navy blue; the irregular decollete is bordered by handkerchief points, and at back, another point suggests a peplum.

The gown by Lucile Parry is of black phosphora satin, with a broad pink band draped over the back and shoulders. It is worn with a floor length coat in black lined with the pink and fastened high at the neck by an oval of brilliants.

The straight shoulder-to-shoulder line has been accentuated by several houses in the midseason; here it is done by Lucile Lelong in black faille and black georgette, with a huge flower of pink feathers at the waistline.

(Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild)

DID YOU KNOW THAT

No report from Paris would be complete without mention of the determined efforts to make feathers fashionable. Earlier in the spring, there were rumors in the market that certain milliners, notably Rebour and Maria Guy, intended to make feathers, and expensive ones, fashionable again; and judging from the festivities of the Grande Semaine, fashionable Parisiennes have fallen in with the idea.

Feather wings are more occasionally seen: Made is the strongest sponsor of these, and Mlle. Made herself wore a hat with bold wing trimming at the races.

Some highlights of the first fall showings in New York are: Shoulders continue wide, with more attention to height.

Skirts remain slender, except for evening, where more latitude is observed.

Cordings, pipings and rolls introduced at shoulders, also at hemlines of daytime and dinner dresses.

Creme satin, satin with more luster, and ribbed fabrics, especially failles and bengalines, high-lighted in silks.

Lightweight woollens tremendously important, in novelty weaves—ribbed versions, velvety finishes, basket and crepe weaves, sometimes in closed lacy weaves.

Black the favorite to date, with contrasting accents, including white, pale pink, pale blue, red.

Combinations of fabrics stressed—satin on woolen, also on crepe and faille, velvet on woolen, also on crepes.

More importance attached to two-piece themes than last season or last year at this time, also important attention is given the tunic, the coat-dress and the redingote.

Furs are also important as trimmings, introduced in borders on capes, jackets and skirts, the fur in narrow proportions, also in jackets with sporty furs such as ocelot worn with woolen dresses.

Talks to Parents

The Changing Child

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

The close of school brings a host of new problems to parents, and problems which change from year to year as the children grow older. For every summer brings a new child and takes away the one of the year before, and we must change our schedule to fit new needs.

For those of us who go away to summer resorts there is less difficulty than for those who stay in town, for at a resort the children can find easily the companions and amusements suited to their needs.

But even here certain problems present themselves, and chief among these the question of too much leisure and no knowledge of how to use it. For a white tennis, swimming and other outdoor sports will occupy the youngsters, but in time these will pall and a restless desire will seize them to do something, go somewhere, be on the move in some way.

Every parent knows the symptoms and fears them, for they are trouble breeders, and may lead to undesirable forms of activity.

A certain amount of creative work seems to me essential for the over-leisured summer boarders which many of our children have become.

What form this activity will take must depend on the community. I know of one town which has a little theater of amateur actors. There is a special class of junior members recruited among the young school and college ranks.

During the summer the playhouse, which is a converted barn equipped for its new purpose, is turned over to them and they are allowed to rehearse and present one or two plays, paying their expenses out of the proceeds.

One of the regular members is nominally in charge of proceedings, but only as a court of final resort.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Hollywood didn't need the news of Zita Johnson's contemplated divorce as evidence that she is a young lady who likes her freedom.

For Hollywood, watching the development of her stage and screen career, already had concluded that. As for her marriage—there had been rumors that she and John Hausman, her playwright husband, were headed the wrong way, but she ignored them until the definite parting time had come. Then she admitted without equivocation that a friendly divorce was in order.

"I knew eight months ago," she says, "that a divorce would probably come. I wanted to be sure to be emotionally free before taking the step."

'Choosy' About Roles
In her screen career the actress has evidenced the same careful consideration of each step that she might take—the essence of her decisions being the preservation of her freedom.

After her success in "Machinal" on Broadway in 1928 she came to Hollywood under contract to M-G-M. After several months of idleness she departed rather than play an unbecoming role. When she came back it was under a contract to R-K-O, but it was a contract that enabled her to say what parts she would play, and to leave at any time, with proper notice, to go back to the stage.

As it happened, she never worked for R-K-O. Before the contract started, she took a role in "Tiger Shark" for Warner Bros., and her first assignment for her own studio was in "Thirteen Women." She didn't like it, and gave up the contract without having drawn a penny on it, or played a role.

Later, contracted to Universal for the still unproduced "Laughing Boy," she made "The Mummy" and went to Paramount for "Luxury Liner." She's practical as well as artistic, however. "That part," she says, "paid my income tax."

She recently completed "The Man Who Dared," but the role that has intrigued her most of all in the movies is her latest, "The Woman in the Chair," played for an independent company.

Just in Case—
Obviously, she doesn't consider her movie experiences entirely happy. As for insurance against roles she dislikes, she plans simply to go back to New York and the stage.

And the way she travels across country, in her big car, accompanied by maid and chauffeur, expresses it again—her desire for freedom.

"I don't like to be cooped up in a train," she laughs. "I want to be able to stop when I please, to take my time, to get out for a walk when I feel like it."

Swordtails Prolific
Swordtails and guppies frequently eat their young and it is usually best to take the parent fish from the tank where the young are soon after the fry appear. Broods of swordtails numbering 180 are recorded, but they are somewhat unusual. The number varies considerably, but 20 to 30 would be a good average.

The Art of Persia
The art of Persia is being found in old palaces. A remarkable work of the time when Darius the Great ruled has been uncovered.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—That report about the stork was a true premonition. A rumor that a baby had been born at the zoo tonight, a large crowd to the zoo tonight, a day or so too early.

"We expect the blessed event any night now," said Keeper McBride. "Baby zebras are always born at night, when nobody is around. Twenty minutes after birth the infant is able to walk and run."

He Made a Friend
Excelsior Springs, Mo.—Herman, a homeless wife-haired terrier, hitchhiked a ride with profit to himself. He leaped into the motor car of Dr. E. A. Ezell, a veterinarian, who found the dog was suffering from an ailment, took him home and cured him.

Cool Reward For Hot Work.
Pullman, Wash.—Henry Travis spent many hot days tilling his wheat land this spring, but now he can cool off.

In a competition, his wheat tested high, contained no smut, and brought a yield of 51 bushels to the acre.

Pullman grain growers presented him with three gallons of ice cream.

Just a Reminder?
Oakland, Calif.—Police questioned the judgment of Leonard Duarte, 15, in selecting the back yard of Marie Pacheco's home as a place for target practice.

Miss Pacheco, 17, said the crack of Leonard's revolver as he fired away at cans kept reminding her that she broke their engagement a week ago.

Duarte will have to explain to the judge.

A Few Holes in One.
Beloit, Wis.—District Attorney Roscoe Grimm has scored three holes in one. The third came on the 188-yard second hole on the municipal golf course here. He scored his first in 1922, the second in 1930.

"Little Willie."
Hammond, Ind.—After seven years of work, Andrew Baber, a watchmaker, has perfected a mechanical man that is able to talk, walk, dance and shoot a pistol, with Baber's aid.

At Home
Galesburg, Ill.—Tom Reynolds and his family of seven have taken over as living quarters the den in a park zoo which formerly was occupied by bears.

At The Theatres

Kingston: "Double Happiness"

Ann Harding and William Powell now vie for honors in this sophisticated drama of high society, in which Miss Harding as a wealthy society girl, falls in love with the popular Mr. Powell, and she stays with the ship until she sinks him into matrimony. Of course shortly after their marriage, Mr. Powell finds little of excitement in his serene and spinstery wife, so he seeks the company of Lilian Bond, who proves to be both understanding and beautiful.

From then on, it is the struggle of Miss Harding to hold her husband's love, a thing she accomplishes after any number of heartaches. Both Mr. Powell and Miss Harding prove why they are considered two of the finest players on the screen, for the play itself isn't quite up to the calibre of the players. Featured on the bill is the one and only Mickey Mouse in the "Mail Pilot."

Orpheum: "A Bedtime Story" and "Tombstone Canyon." Maurice Chevalier, the gentleman who won immortal film fame by commercializing on an underling lower lip, secures again in this comedy drama of a wealthy French nobleman who finds a baby left in his car, and who runs into all kinds of difficulty when he decides to keep the baby in his apartment. The best part of the show is the capable dramatics of Baby LeRoy, who makes some of the leading Hollywood stars look like novices. Maurice Chevalier is the same as ever, an engaging comedian who sings and acts in his own inimitable style. Edward Everett Horton is perfect in the role of the butler, while Helen Twelvetrees lends her beauty to the romantic side of the story. "Tombstone Canyon" with Ken Maynard and Tarzan, the wonder horse, is one of those mystery western attractions with action in large doses.

Broadway: "The Story of Temple Drake" and "Sailor Be Good." From the story of William Faulkner, toned down a bit to screen adaptations, this first offering on the double feature bill is sordid drama of a southern girl who believed that love was a thing to play with, and who learned differently from bitter experience. After leading men on for the thrill of it, she finally meets a gangster who doesn't know how to be led. She shoots him, and the story ends as she confesses all to save another who is on trial for his life. Sex is the dominant feature of the play, with Miriam Hopkins and Jack LaRue in the featured roles.

"Sailor Be Good" is a rollicking talkie of a prize fighting sailor man, played with humor and gusto by Jack Oakie, and it is also a tale of his loves and troubles with a cast that includes Vivienne Osborne, George E. Stone and Gertrude Michael.

Tomorrow.
Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Night of Terror" and "Man of Action." Bela Lugosi is the main attraction of the first film, a horror tale filled with gripping melodrama and all sort of things. Sally Blaine is also in the cast. "Man of Action" with Tim McCoy, is an action Slick western talkie. "Hurricane Express" the serial thriller, is also featured on the program. Broadway: Same.

FABLE OF BEING CORRECT AND PROPER

By GEORGE ADE

ONCE there was a Man named Alonso Frothingham whose wife used to howl him out something scandalous on account of his crude manner of speech and his penchant for using all of the Smart Aleck slang he could pick up. Even when Company was present he made no apparent effort to recognize the presence of the Dominie or the College Prof, but seemed to take a joyous delight in saying, right out in front of them, "Not on your White-kert!" or "How do you get that Way?" or, possibly "I'll tell the cock-eyed World!" He sure was an Injun.

The wife, whose front name was Mehltable, often told him that one reason why she let out such a Yalp about his Coarse Language was that he had no excuse for pulling the Rich Stuff. He had been incubated in an Atmosphere of Culture, and, later, attended the State University. He had read all the Works of Sir Walter Scott and Robert W. Chambers. He had delivered Orations which were Scholarly and full of hang-up Words, such as "Vouchsafe," "Eloquy," and "Pardventure," so what was the Large Idea of trying to make folks think he was a Longshoreman?

No matter how thoroughly a Lady is On to her Permanent Affliction and however low may be her Estimate of his Moral Grandeur and Intellectual Prowess, she always tries to be loyal to his Nobs and spread the Impression among the Neighbors that he is a Combination of Elihu Root, Herbert Hoover, the Pope, Dr. Butler and Dr. William Lyon Phelps of Yale. He may be a Matt at Home but when he gets to the Beach House he is a World's Champion with a Ribbon around his Neck.

Now there was simply no Let-Up to Mehltable ragging Alonso on account of his Predilection for the low-brow Vernacular. She said that no refined Gentleman would ever speak about busting the Slats of an Enemy or designate the Family Doctor as a Slice of Herkimer or refer to a Young Lady Caller as a Pip.

She told Los that their Social Ambitions would never be realized and they would not receive the Sacred Pink Tickets admitting them to the most inner and refrigerated Circle of Polite Society until he put the Soft Pedal on his Roughneck Conversation and learned to apply Salve instead of Red Pepper.

She dinged at him so long that finally he made what is known as The Married Man's Compromise, i. e., he decided to let her have her own way in Everything. He said he would Chop on the Chuck Connors Dialect and make Lindley Murray sound like a Vulgarian. He would convert his most trivial Talk into a Well of purest English undiluted, so that all who heard him would be prone to emit Exclamations of Wonder and Admiration. Yes, indeed!

At that, the Good Wife was not prepared for the Verbal Confectionery which he began to lavish upon her. For instance, they were seated at the Dinner Table and she wanted to know if he had put in a pleasant and profitable Day, whereupon he replied: "On the Contrary, I have been subjected to a Series of rather harrowing Experiences, all tending to disturb my Calm and ruffle what is, under all but abnormal Circumstances, a truly Angelic Temper."

"Have you gone off your Nut?" asked Mehltable.

"No ma'am, I am trying to let you know that Everything went Punk with me today, but I am endeavoring to convey the Information in Language so chaste and dignified that even my best Pal and severest Critic cannot find Fault with her Little Alonso."

"You can lay off of the cheap and rowdy Expressions without trying to make a Fool of the Dictionary," suggested Fried Wife.

"Unfortunately I cannot do so," he replied. "There doesn't seem to be any happy Compromise between Slang and Jaw-breakers. When one decides to correct his manner of speech by refraining from the current Catch-Phrases of the Street, the homely Colloquialisms and all of the barbarous Americanisms which are so repulsive to High School Superintendents, he finds himself at once imbedded in a Box of polysyllabic Circumlocutions."

"Slip me that Last One again," said Mehltable.

"I'm endeavoring," said Alonso, "to suggest that when one starts in on a painful and determined Effort to make all of his Oral Efforts comport with the Indelible Rules of the Lexicographers and Fustians, he will find himself up against it unless—I beg pardon—he will find himself confronting a Dilemma, in that he will be compelled to use only those Words and Phrases which have not been vulgarized by Common Usage. He will have to omit the Anglo-Saxon and Celtic words long double-Jointed Derivations from the Latin and the Result will be, as I remarked a Moment ago, a Series of Polysyllabic Circumlocutions."

"I am glad that you remember some of the Long Words you heard in College," said she, "but don't think you are going to jar my Laugh out of me by springing that fine of Low Comedy. One can be Civilized without trying to talk like an Editorial."

Great Lakes Tide.
There is a slight tidal movement on the Great Lakes, but so slight as to be unnoticed so far as navigation or ordinary observation are concerned. The noticeable changes in the lake levels are due to anomalous conditions.

When Fumes is Burned.
The effectiveness of smoke screens depends on its being ignited into the blood stream. The poison of the dead-end of smoke is said to be quite harmless if taken into the digestive system by way of the mouth.

"Whatever else they may hang on to you, you will always go Free when accused of being Funny," said Mehltable, giving him the Fishy Eye. "I am trying to get you Parlor-Broke and teach you to get on with a Fork and you, with your Usual Delinquency in ordinary Conversation, are trying to kid my noble Efforts, gum up the whole Program and make me look like a dedicated Wham. Many a Woman has been it to Rome and got a Decree for a good deal less than I have put up with."

Sweet and Sanitary.
"You wrong me, Sweetie," insisted Alonso. "I am trying, with all of my Boyish Strength and with my Fingers crossed, to make my Talk sweet and party and sanitary. For nearly One Hundred Years, as nearly as I can estimate the Time, you have been throwing the Harpoon at me because I talk like George M. Cohan instead of George the Fifth. Up to the time that our Honeymoon evaporated and you began to give me a Line on my spectacular Inferiority, I labored under the pleasant Delusion that I was one of Nature's Noblemen. And now because I use the only kind of Talk which can be understood by the Debs with whom I am compelled to associate, you are trying to make it out that I am a flat-headed Moron. I don't know just what a Moron is but whatever it is, that's me. Now that I have got rid of my Burglar Tools and am trying to go Straight and want to keep away from the Old Life, why does the dear little Helpmate refuse to lead a Helping Hand? Remember, that no matter how long a man may have been talking Loose Talk, he may be down but he's never out."

"At this juncture, when you should be singing 'Rescue the Perishing,' and getting ready to leave me the Life Line you are sitting there with a Dirty Look in your Eye, regarding me as if I were a loathsome Reptile instead of a dandy little Fellow with a Heart of Gold."

"I don't remember the exact Word-ing of our Nuptial Agreement," said Mrs. Frothingham, "but I am sure there is nothing in the Contract to the Effect that I would be expected to live in a Nut College. When you are at your Top Form, Alonso, you are no Leon Errol and just at present you are as excruciating as a Hearse with Plumes on It. The only way I can fit into the Picture with you is to wear Black the Year round. When it comes to assassinating Mirth you have certainly got many a Notch on your Gun."

Alonso began to suspect that his attempt to duplicate the banner performance of Thomas Babington Macaulay, Joseph Addison and Walter Pater had gone bloomy and Blah.

He had started out to qualify for the Intelligentsia and had landed back in the Ash-Heap.

It became evident that he was not a Rhetorician, but a Rube. So he gave Notice that in the Future he would confine himself to Words of One Syllable.

"Make them as Few as possible," said Mehltable, "unless you want to break your Plate and get the Air."

MORAL: There never was a House big enough for two High-Brows.

River Rhone May Give Up Old Art Treasures

The success which has attended the recovery of ancient treasure from the ocean's bottom at several different points, has been the means of stimulating interest in other projects of the same character. Preparations are being made for two boats loaded with valuable Roman treasures which were sunk in 1572 in the Rhone river. It was the ill-fated year of the St. Bartholomew massacre when thousands of Protestants were killed in France by order of King Charles IX. Queen Catherine de Medici, the king's mother, ordered several artistic treasures of Arles to be transferred to Paris. Eight columns hewn in porphyry and several sarcophagi and bas-reliefs were loaded on two barges in the Rhone. But as soon as the barges left the Arles harbor, the current of the river toppled them over and they went to the bottom with their precious load.

Divers are now at work and it is hoped soon the Arles museum again will count among its riches the objects carried away 350 years ago.

Favors Round Houses.
"People who live in round houses will never be ill," so declared Miss Grace Cope, a woman architect, in London. Among her reasons are: "It is a recognized fact that the eye responds much more readily to a curved line than to a straight one. Wastage of health, both mental and physical, is practically all in a circular house. If we could get curves standardized in the architecture of our homes we should have a much stronger nation." If, in addition, Miss Cope added, we have "more psychology in the kitchen," the perfect house is complete.

His Own Latin.
The medieval cobbler who used to attend the public disputations held at the academy in Latin, was once asked if he understood Latin. "No," replied the cobbler, "but I know who is wrong in the argument." "How?" he was asked. "Why, by seeing who is angry first."

Party Frocks for the Younger Set

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

COMES now the season which calls youth to go partying in frocks which tune to flowers and birds and sunshine and twinkling stars set in shyness of blue and all such beautiful things which go to make a summer. Well, here they are in the picture, three charming frocks, just such as are sure to win their way into the heart of every young girl who sees them.

Alfy-fairy creations are they, made of chiffon, of taffeta and of net, these being materials which fashion stresses with emphasis this summer. When it comes to favorite media for the younger set's party frocks.

It is said in regard to favorite colors that this is a "pastel season" and the trio of lovely dresses illustrated goes far to prove it so. Together, they look as if a bit of a rainbow must have been coaxed to lend some of its coloring to the scene, in that the first gown, on the cunning little dancing figure, is of chiffon in a delicate blue, while pale pink taffeta is the choice of the smiling maiden centered in the group, the tall girl to the right wearing a love-of-a-gown of green silk net in a delicious cool green.

A significant feature about two of these models is the fact that the skirts are formed of tiers of ruffles. This styling is very popular this season, so much so that even dresses for grown-ups are fashioned in this wise, with this difference, however, that for adults the skirts are fitted decidedly snug, the ruffle-upon-ruffle movement beginning just above the knees.

If you study the dressmaking details closely you will notice that the ruffles for the little chiffon frock are put together with wee shirred headings which accent the softness of the material. The taffeta ruffles for the other dress are put together with cording covered with self-silk, so as to accent the sprightly silhouette which crisp taffeta is supposed to have.

Exquisite lace edging with countless tiny rosebuds nestling among its frills, outlines the cap sleeves and wide pointed collar of the dainty frock which the little dancer is wearing. Long streamers of narrow double-faced (pink on one side and blue on the other) satin ribbon dangle gracefully from the neckline down the front of the frock.

The pink taffeta frock has perky cap sleeves made of ruffled organza in matching pink, finished with a binding of the taffeta. A narrow pale blue velvet ribbon is tied about the wrist.

For modish sub-debs there is nothing prettier than the party frock made of either silk or cotton net, especially now that net is so smartly in fashion. For the gown shown here (to the right) the designer chooses fine silk net in a lovely pale green. Rows of satin folds in matching green make an effective trimming. A lovely rose shading from pink to deep red posed at the waistline sounds just enough of a sophisticated note to satisfy the aspiring young modern who is wearing it.

PARIS STYLES

"EEL GRAY" TONE IS LATEST SHOE COLOR

Schiaparelli's "eel gray" has been adopted by the shoe world.

Fashion mongers believe that it will be the high style shoe gray of fall and winter. It will make a shoe that can be worn with all other lighter tones of gray, with navy, red and even with black or brown. A problem thus has been solved for the boot-maker.

Another important kid leather shoe color is to be "taupe" for fall. As its name indicates it is the shade of the little field mole, a brown with just sufficient gray to conform to the gray vogue.

Predictions for the future include a new "faun brown" as splendid combinations. It should harmonize well with all the browns on the fashion bill of fall, and it is very smart combined with black kid—in the latest half and half type of shoe.

Permanent Wave or Curls

Now Attained in Comfort
Many a girl who started life as an ugly duckling is an attractive woman today. Modern science has given her many charms that nature failed to provide. Take curly hair, for instance. Today it's as easy to transform straight hair into a mass of natural looking curls as it is to keep your nails trim. With the new machine-less method of permanent waving, you can sit back comfortably throughout the waving process, and read a book or go ahead with your knitting. You aren't "attached" to any electricity. A clean odorless vapor is applied to your hair, and in less time than you'd think it possible, you have a lovely head of curls.

Crocheted Fabrics Are Being Employed on Hats

A new hat has come out of the Paris boulevards, evidently to replace now-dead Checkin. It consists of nothing more than a square piece of knitted or crocheted fabric—or string done in a fish-net weave—the corners of which are stitched in a rounded manner so that when the cap is on it is, it is opened and the head inserted, the hat fits like a cap and the "ears" stand up stiffly at each corner.

Weekly Review Of Egg Auction

The demand for eggs on the Hudson Auction at Poughkeepsie continues strong but the volume is falling off due partly to a decrease in production. The following is a summary of the prices received by producers for eggs in case lots, less handling charges. During the week a total of 268 cases were sold.

White Eggs

Large—N. Y. S. Fancy, 27c to 29 1/2c; Grade A, 24c to 29 1/2c; Producer's Grade, 16c to 17c.

Mediums—N. Y. S. Fancy, 25 1/2c to 26 1/2c; Grade A, 20 1/2c to 26 1/2c; Producer's Grade, 14c to 15c.

Pullets—Grade A, 13c to 14 1/2c; Pewees—Grade A, 13c to 14 1/2c.

Brown Eggs

Large—Grade A, 25c to 29 1/2c; Mediums—Grade A, 23 1/2c to 24 1/2c.

The directors wish to remind the members of the auction to use special care in handling the eggs during hot weather and continue to use care in grading. A fine reputation has already been made for Hudson Valley eggs and the directors want to further increase the demand which will result in better prices to the producer.

Midsummer Poultry And Egg Outlook

The following is a summary of the midsummer poultry and egg outlook prepared by Albert Kerd, manager of the United States Department of Agriculture, and released by the official report just released by the United States Department of Agriculture. Poultrymen are expected to be interested in this report as a guide in planning the operation of their poultry business.

Supply of Eggs

The supply of fresh eggs during the coming fall and winter is likely to exceed that of last year by a small amount but will probably be less than the average supply. Early fall hatchings will probably be less than last year. However, there is at present a large supply of eggs in storage, about four per cent higher than the five-year average, and about 33 per cent in excess of the extremely small stocks of last year, which must be utilized during the coming fall and winter months. These storage eggs will exert a depressing effect upon egg prices.

The number of hens and pullets in farm flocks on July 1 was practically the same as last year, but the number of young chickens in farm flocks was three per cent greater than a year ago. The probable number of eggs in farm flocks during the coming fall and winter appears now to depend mainly upon whether the early hatchings of laying stock, which have accompanied the rise in the price of food and the lag in the price of eggs, will continue long enough to wipe out the gain in the number of chickens raised.

The prospective large supply of eggs and other meats during the next six or eight months, due to expected heavy hatchings of meat animals because of drought and shortage brought about by drought conditions, may be a factor in limiting the demand for poultry and eggs. Farm prices of chickens and eggs have not shared in the increases that have occurred to date in the prices of most agricultural commodities and the prices of poultry feedstuffs, and the price outlook from the standpoint of supplies is not encouraging to poultry and egg producers.

Hens in Farm Flocks

The number of hens and pullets in farm flocks on July 1 this year is practically the same as on July 1 last year but was about two per cent less than in 1931 and seven per cent less than the July 1 average for the five years 1927 to 1931. In the northern states the number is slightly greater than last year but in the south and west it is smaller. The number on hand June 1 was about three per cent greater than a year earlier but the gain was entirely lost through the heavy hatchings of eggs during June. Hatchings had continued heavy up to July 15 and it appears that the number of hens raised over will be materially less this year than last.

Commercial Baby Chick Production

The production of baby chicks by commercial hatcheries during the first half of 1933 was about eight per cent greater than the production during the corresponding period of 1932. Early hatchings were smaller than last year but in April, May and June they were materially larger. This indicates that a larger number of pullets can be kept for egg production next fall than a year ago, as the average hatchings were unusually favorable, pullets will be laying at a later date than last year. It is possible that the large proportion of baby chicks toward the close of the hatching season was due to a greater interest in late broilers, as broiler prices have held relatively higher than the price for other dressed poultry classes all through the year.

The output of baby chicks by commercial hatcheries in the Pacific coast states this year was practically equal to that of a year ago, and about 10 per cent larger. Hatchings throughout the grain belt of the middle west were also considerably above those of last year. Increased production was likewise reported for the commercial egg producing areas of the New England States and the Middle Atlantic States, but here the increases were not quite so large as in the egg-producing sections of the middle west.

Young Chickens on Farms

Early hatchings were light this year. The number of chickens of this year's hatching in farm flocks April 1 was less than on that date last year, but in May and June numbers were about 5 per cent more. During June 3 per cent of this gain was lost. On July 1, numbers were 3 per cent more than last year, 9 per cent more than in 1931, and 2 per cent above the 5-year average for that date. These numbers are, however, about 2 per cent less than in 1930 and 4 per cent less than the 1930 average in 1932.

The number of young birds in the North Central States, which furnish ordinarily from 2-3 % of the market poultry shipped to the New

POLITICS at Random

It is not so impossible for anyone at a distance to realize how completely the Washington picture is distorted these days by the National Recovery Administration.

Some of the most important things going on in other fields. The government is interested in a multiplicity of economic matters, ranging from a common "open market" campaign of currency expansion to the greatest public works program in history. Not so greatly is the National Recovery Administration in the hands of anything but the N. R. A.

In every class of education this significant emphasis is the talk of the town. Already it has taken the shape of an institution. Like the American River, it even has developed its own law of inheritance, which must be followed by those who play on the field of education.

General Johnson, the administrator, is the master of constant attention. His press conference attracts the news writers as does to other part of the passing show at Washington. And they find the trademark of a movement in the program. As standing in the tradition, that with one cannot find the day when they want to all of their representatives on the lower end of the ladder of the economic ladder.

Topping Them All

Probably no other movement is so comprehensive as that may be involved in the great undertaking. It is like the highest peak in the range, but the last few can do it in the distant view of the summit.

The men who originated the scheme and the men now administering it would be the last to claim that they can yet see how the recovery act is to be applied in all its details. One by one they are picking away at the tremendous features of the plan, with an evident confidence that it can be worked out somehow.

Their difficulties emerge directly from the fact that everything depends on a sweeping change in economic relationships. Hereafter, for instance, no one ever hatched here and there in certain of their fashions. Under the old system that didn't matter.

By SYLVIA PRICE
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

It is a great deal under the law. The law of democracy must be drawn pretty clearly because each industry is to have its own code. The ship-building industry has been one of the first to be drawn into the program, for instance, and the structural steel industry has been one of the last. But what is to be done about that large section of the ship-building industry which is essentially working in the world but not in the world?

Nobody knows yet. It is just one of the problems with which the N. R. A. is wrestling.

The Final Judge

But the one question which often arises in administration officials is: Is it to be such a technical problem as this? It is simply: To what degree can the public be relied upon to give the necessary support to this venture?

That, as Washington sees it, really is the only "if" in the equation. The idea is that it won't matter much how details are settled, provided popular sentiment is sufficiently aroused to demand results. Hence the present mountainous business of arousing.

markets have shown a decrease under those of the preceding year.

Storage Stocks of Eggs

It was generally expected that the substantial profits made on eggs stored in the spring of 1932 would be an incentive to larger storings in 1933. The low point in storage stocks for this year was reached on February 1 when 75,000 cases were in storage. Eggs began to go into storage in late February under an early demand, and as the season advanced stocks piled up more rapidly than they did a year ago. On July 1, shell eggs in storage had reached a total of 9,335,000 cases compared with 6,550,000 cases on July 1 last year, and 9,020,000 cases for the 5-year July 1 average.

The stocks of frozen eggs increased much more rapidly than a year ago, amounting to 52,794,000 pounds stored during the months of March to June, inclusive, compared with 32,461,000 pounds stored during the same months last year. The combined stocks of shell eggs and frozen eggs in storage on July 1 this year equalled 12,313,000 cases of shell eggs compared with 9,210,000 cases on July 1 last year and 11,829,000 cases for the 5-year average. Ordinarily, the peak holdings of eggs in storage occurs about August 1. It is not probable that the peak holdings for this year will equal the record high established in 1930 but they will exceed those of last year by an ample margin and also those of the 5-year average.

Fall and Winter Production of Eggs

With the number of hens slightly smaller than last year on July 1 and with the heavy hatchings of hens during June continuing well into July, the production of eggs during the early fall will probably be less than in that period last year. Unless hatchings of hens and pullets should continue rather heavy during the remainder of the summer, production of eggs in the late fall and winter after the increased number of pullets come into laying should be somewhat greater than last season, even assuming a somewhat lowered production of eggs per layer owing to higher priced feed.

Poultry and Egg Prices

Poultry and egg prices have not advanced in line with general commodity prices during recent months. The farm price of eggs reached its lowest point of 10.1 cents on March 15, from which it rose in April and May, but in June it again declined to the level reached in March. The farm price of chickens also reached its lowest point in March and after rising in April and May declined again in June, but not to the low level of March.

The fact that prices for poultry and eggs have not participated in the upward movement in commodity prices is more clearly disclosed by the relationships of current prices to those of a year ago. The index of wholesale prices of farm products for May 1933, in terms of a pre-war base was 70.4, which was a higher average than for any month in 1932. Similarly, the index of wholesale food prices for May 1933, was 92.1, which was the high point of the present year and higher than for either May or June of 1932, although slightly lower than for the other months of last year.

Index numbers of commodity prices for June also indicated generally rising prices for the major groups of agricultural commodities as compared to June prices in 1932, particularly for the grains and cotton. Contrasted with these increases, the farm price of eggs during 1933 and the retail and wholesale prices have been consistently somewhat lower than for the same months in 1932. Farm prices for poultry during the first half of 1933 also have been consistently lower than for the same period in 1932.

Higher grain prices, together with the lag in egg prices have tended to curtail some of the expansion of poultry flocks which occurred earlier in the season. In considering the trend of prices of poultry products in comparison with that of other farm products, it is necessary to remember that although poultry prices reached record low levels, they did not fall as much as feed prices; moreover, no condition of greatly reduced production or other special reason such as have contributed to a sharp increase in prices of certain other commodities, has existed to cause a price rise in poultry products.

If the expansion during the past few months in employment and payrolls continues it will increase the buying power of consumers and have a sustaining influence on poultry and egg prices.

Cigar Smoke Tests Draft

Cigar smoke is used in testing the draft and pressure in boilers, furnaces, chimneys and air ducts with a glass-tube gauge. Smoke is blown into the gauge at the upper end, which is then closed with the finger. The tip of the other end is inserted into an opening in the chimney or air duct and a small stream of the air current passes into the instrument. As the air rushes in, a dividing line forms between the incoming current and the cigar smoke. Calibrations on the gauge make possible a reading at the dividing line, showing the draft without making calculations.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

JERRY MUSKRAT DECIDES WHERE HE WILL BUILD

THE building of a house is a very serious matter for any one. You ask father if this isn't so. It is a matter for a great deal of thought and planning. The very first thing to be decided is where the house is to be, and this is most important. With the little people of the Green Forest, the Green Meadows, the Laughing Brook and the Smiling Pool the choosing of a place for a new house is even more important than the building of the house itself. No matter how fine a house may be built, if it is in a poor location it may be worse than no house at all.

You don't see how that can be? Suppose Welcome Robin should build a fine nest right in plain sight where Black Pussy could get to it with hardly any trouble. It would be better for Welcome Robin to have no nest at all. Suppose Johnny Chuck should dig his house right in the middle of Farmer Brown's vegetable garden. It would be better for Johnny to have no house at all. So you see the picking out of a place to build is most important.

Jerry Muskrat knows this. He always has known it, but since the washing away of his old house in the flood he has appreciated the truth of this more than ever. This is why he was taking so much time to look about before building a new house. There were several things to be looked out for. First of all, he meant to be as sure as it was possible to be that this time his house would be out of the current should the Laughing Brook become a flood again.

This would be quite a simple matter were it not for other things. The foundation must be in the water. A house on dry land wouldn't do at all. It must be where from one side at least he could easily get to deep water, so that he wouldn't be frozen in in the winter. This was most important. Then it should be where the digging would be fairly easy and where he could find plenty of things to build with.

So you see Jerry had much to think of in deciding just where to build that new house and he didn't intend to be hurried into making any mistakes. First he carefully examined all sides of the Smiling Pool. Then he went up the Laughing Brook a little way. Afterward he went down the Laughing Brook a little way. But neither up nor down the Laughing Brook could he find a place that suited him at all. He hadn't expected to. He had looked so as to make sure. Then once more he carefully went all around the Smiling Pool.

In some ways the place where his old house had stood was the best place of all, but Jerry had no intention of being swept away in a flood again and anyone with half an eye could see that when the water rose to a certain height that place would be right in the middle of the current. Way around on one side where the bulrushes grew thickest and tallest a little mud bar ran out into the Smiling Pool. There the water was only a few inches deep, but at the end of this little mud bar under water it sloped off sharply into deep water. Out beyond was the Big Rock. In time of flood the Big Rock would break the current, so that it never would sweep across that mud bank very hard.

The more Jerry looked at this place the better it suited him. Finally he made up his mind. "This is the place," said he to himself. "I'm going to build right here."

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

ON "KEEPING COMPANY"

OUR popular custom of "keeping company" before marrying was recommended, by an auspicious body in France, including many prominent churchmen, at the ninth annual convention of the Association for Christian Marriage.

In France marriage is still regarded as a family as much as a personal matter, and in many instances it is still by the parents that the choice of a mate is made.

So even today it is something like a bolt from the blue to find an ecclesiastical body recommending "American customs, formulas and principles of courtship and marriage" for their young people.

Specifically there is approval of the "American way" of "keeping company" thereby permitting lovers to get better acquainted with each other—so preventing unhappy and unsuccessful unions.

Fortunately we are not asked to affirm the fact that "keeping company" prevents unhappy or unsuccessful marriages in this country! The ninth annual convention of the Association for Christian Marriage just took that for granted. They are on the right track, of course. For whatever percentage of success in marriage we register under conditions where the young people do their own choosing and their own courting and have an opportunity to know each other—it would certainly be less if they had nothing to say about the choice of a mate.

When Bridget "walks out" with John she is in a better position to stake her life's happiness on him than if her mother chose him because she was friends with his mother in the kindergarten.

For my part I approve of the recommendation of the ninth annual convention of the Association for Christian Marriage at Rouen, France. I believe in keeping company. For one good reason: It's such fun. It's one grand and glorious, thrilling, glamorous time in the life of a girl that she can never have again!

FRUIT DESSERTS

DURING the summer we begin with the luscious strawberry and serve it fresh with sugar and cream, over angel cake with cream, crushed over ice cream, and everyone likes the old-fashioned rich blanchet mixture for strawberry shortcake. The current and cherry follow with raspberries and blackberries, so that one need not wait for fruit desserts from early in the spring until the later fruits of autumn are ripe.

Blueberry Betty.

Mix two cupsful of soft bread crumbs (packed solidly) with one-half cupful of melted butter. Arrange in a buttered baking dish in alternate layers with two cupsful of blueberries, sprinkle with two tablespoonsful of sugar, a pinch of salt and a little lemon juice. Cover the top with crumbs and bake 20 minutes. Remove the cover and continue baking until the crumbs are brown. Serve with hot sweetened cream.

Raspberry Charlotte Russe.

Soak two tablespoonsful of gelatin in one-third of a cupful of cold water, dissolve over hot water, cool slightly and add to one and one-half cupsful of strained raspberry pulp and the juice. Two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of orange extract. Set the dish in a bowl of iced water and stir constantly until the mixture begins to thicken, then fold in one and one-half cupsful of heavy cream whipped until stiff. Turn into individual molds lined with thin slices of sponge cake. Chill and serve.

Blackberry Roll.

Roll a rich biscuit dough one-fourth of an inch in thickness. Spread with fresh raspberry jam. Roll like a jelly roll, moisten the edges and press them together as securely as possible. Dip a cloth into boiling water, wring out in another cloth, dredge the hot cloth with flour and tie up the roll in the cloth, allowing room for rising. Cover with boiling water and cook two hours, or place in a steamer and steam one hour. Cover closely while cooking. Remove from the cloth to a hot platter and serve with cream and sugar or a foamy sauce.

Failing Sight

Ninety-five persons out of every hundred who have reached the age of sixty years have defective vision. Should we accept this as a natural result of growing old or as an artificial result of unnecessary abuse of eyesight? At forty years of age about 35 out of each 100 persons have measured eye defects. At the age of twenty years about 25 per cent are so afflicted.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. COULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

"There is no telling how far this new found interest in intercollegiate rowing may go on the Pacific coast," writes Paul Zimmerman from Los Angeles.

"If the facts had been told a year ago, Washington and California, the west's two crew-minded institutions, were in a quandary. Since neither was flush with money, it was not considered likely that either could compete in the classic Poughkeepsie, later called off, and that left them with one race on the calendar.

"Then the enthusiastic Major Goodsell talked the University of California at Los Angeles into the sport and put it over in a large way. California and Washington were invited, expenses paid, to participate in a coast championship at Long Beach, and that went over.

"Given the excuse for his enthusiasm, Goodsell then planned and promoted the regatta, with such success that it gave Washington the opportunity to clinch its claims to the national college 'sprint' championship. When they row less than three or four miles it is considered a 'sprint'."

Trojans Next

"Western rowing thus finds itself 'out of the woods' for the time being. Right on the heels of Washington's victory the University of Southern California announced it was going to make a place for the sport on its extensive schedule.

"If and when the Trojans, who have been listening to Goodsell's teachings, despite his across-town affiliations with U. C. L. A., launch their navy, it is considered likely that Stanford, once identified with the sport, will return to the water. Oregon also has in better times considered variety rowing.

"It is hard for Goodsell, or most of the 15,000 persons who saw the national event for that matter, to believe anything but that the east will take kindly to the idea of its becoming an annual affair, not in competition with the classic Poughkeepsie. Especially does Goodsell believe this will be true since expenses are to be paid.

May Lengthen Course

"Long Beach's civic pride, somewhat buried under the earthquake debris, has been touched to the point that already there is talk of lengthening the 2,000-meter Olympic course to two or three miles. It is pointed out that this can be done by dredging the lagoon at a comparatively low cost.

"The chances are not good that Washington, California, U. C. L. A. or Southern California will be able to participate in the Poughkeepsie event for a season or two because of the expense, but at Long Beach they can race, perhaps even at some profit in another year or two, since the course is entirely enclosed and the turnstiles click a paying tune."

Tagging Major League Bases

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The New York Giants, who were holding the National League lead on pitching alone, suddenly have blossomed out as a team of hitters just when a bit of extra punch may come in very handy to help them down the home stretch.

They set up a season's scoring record in their current series, with the Phillies on Wednesday and just to prove it wasn't a "fluke", they duplicated Wednesday's 18 to 1 score yesterday.

The Giants piled up 23 hits, most of them off the veteran right-hander, Charles Filat Rhem, to make their totals for three games 58 hits and 42 runs. They piled up a 7-1 lead in seven innings, then scored nine runs in the eighth when Rhem mixed passes with seven hits.

Every Giant except Lefty Clark, the starting pitcher who was relieved by Carl Hubbell in the seventh, had a hand in the hitting and Joe Moore, Mel Ott and Frank O'Doul cracked out four blows each.

The Giants failed to gain on the second place Pittsburgh Pirates, who again found the trick of winning games in the ninth and defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 5 to 4.

After three Cardinal errors in the seventh had kept the Bucs in the running and spoiled Burleigh Grimes' first mound appearance since he returned to the Cards, Pittsburgh put over the winning run in the ninth when Lloyd Waner singled, advanced on a passed ball and scored on Pie Traynor's hit.

The fifth place Boston Braves cut the Cardinals' margin to two games by taking a doubleheader from the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 1 and 3 to 0, behind fine pitching by Ben Cantwell and Bob Smith. Between them they gave only 11 hits and Smith, making his first start since he was bought from Cincinnati, pitched a four-hit shutout. Wally Berger contributed his 20th homer to the second victory.

In the only American League game, the Detroit Tigers went into fifth place, passing Chicago as they downed the White Sox, 3 to 2, in 11 innings. Vic Sorrell allowed the Hoos only six hits and Hank Greenberg drove in all the Tiger runs with a homer and a single.

NOMINATE EQUIPOISE FOR SARATOGA HANDICAP

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP)—C. V. Whitney nominated his handicap champion, Equipoise, for the 31st running of the Saratoga handicap today, giving the five-year-old son of Pennant-Swinging an excellent chance to boost his total earnings past the $300,000 mark.

The race, at a mile and a quarter, carried a purse of $2,500 added with about $6,400 going to the winner. Equipoise already has earned $297,170 so that victory would make him well over the $300,000 mark and put him close to 200 in the matter of total earnings. Only Zer, Gallant Fox, Phar Lap and Sun Beau top the Whitney star in money won.

Equipoise, however, was asked to carry the terrific burden of 142 pounds and give away from 19 to 40 pounds and seven rivals including the Wheatley stable's Dark Secret, Morton L. Schwartz's Gusto, the Glen Riddle Farm's War Glory, the Brookmound stable's Caesar's Ghost, the Anall stable's Larranaga, W. R. Coe's Oculator and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Neverfadem. Equipoise has been a gallant weight-carrier in the past but whether he could shoulder so tremendous an impact over the long route remained to be seen.

Americans Ahead In Tennis Tourney

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP)—

Thanks to the brilliant play of 20-year-old Sarah Palfrey, subbing for Helen Willis Moody, the United States carried a 3-0 lead into the second and final day of the Wightman Cup series against Great Britain today.

All but reconciled to defeat after Mrs. Moody had been forced to withdraw at the last minute because of a back injury, American supporters looked on in astonishment yesterday as Miss Palfrey, ably seconded by Helen Jacobs, the American champion, made a clean sweep of the first day's matches.

That left the American side needing only one victory in the four matches remaining today to win the cup for the third year in succession and for the seventh time since the series was inaugurated in 1923. Great Britain has won the cup four times.

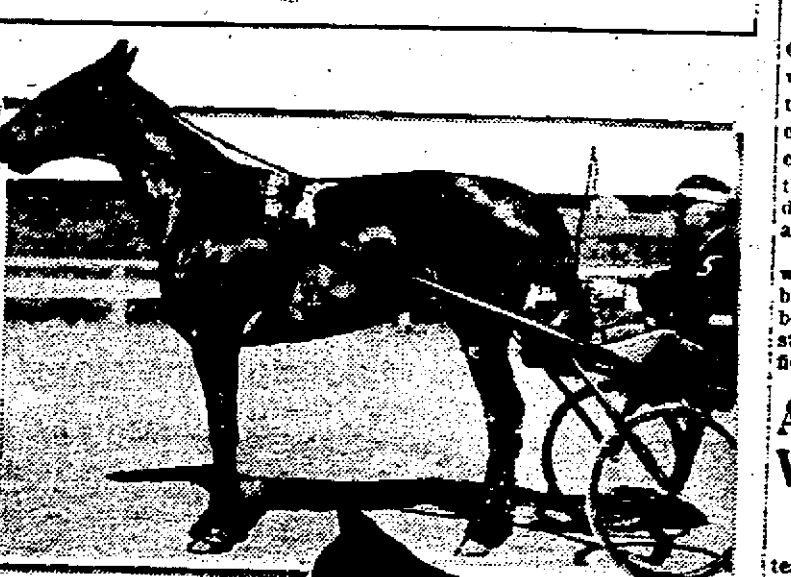

On any other day, Miss Jacobs' surprisingly decisive 6-4, 6-2 triumph over Dorothy Round, No. 1 star of the British team, would have earned most of the headlines but the American champion was all but forgotten in the face of the drama that surrounded Miss Palfrey's entrance into the series as Mrs. Moody's understudy.

Gardeners Shoutout By New Paltz Stars

Kahan's Pitching a So-Bit Game in Response But 3-0 Score Shows As Is—Ashdown Claims Crayfish Got Two; New Paltz Says Not.

The battle between the Crystal Gardens and the New Paltz All Stars at New Paltz Friday did not end on the diamond as it should have, but was carried to the sports writers, when differences in box scores were discovered and each side stuck to its story. The dispute was over Kahan's no-hit game. New Paltz credited him with such honors but Manager John Ashdown, of the locals, said his boys got two hits to the infield and were beaten out at first; so the sports editors, sitting as an arbitrating court, decided that New Paltz might have been over enthusiastic about the no-hits, but gave Kahan the undeniable shut-out, 3-0.

According to the laws of baseball, if a batsman beats out a throw to first base, provided the ball has not been fumbled, he is credited with a hit. But indications are that New Paltz has abandoned this rule and has become more concerned with its pitchers pitching no-hit games.

The two hits that the Crystal Gardens claim were gathered by Feldmesser and Rogers. Feldmesser, the first man to bat in the first inning, hit to short stop and beat the throw to first. Later in the game Luke Roosa batted one to third base and again the throw was late at first. Both times the ball was fielded well.

"In both cases," Ashdown said this morning, "New Paltz gave errors to the men who failed to get the runner. It was an easy way of getting out of hits and keeping Kahan's slate clean."

And later in the conversation he said: "New Paltz is a tough place to get credit for a hit. Unless you bang the ball to all corners of the lot, your hitting isn't looked upon as anything—close doesn't count."

And furthermore, they said we only committed three errors, when we actually committed five. And Volker didn't allow six hits but five. We agreed that Kahan fanned eleven men and Volker three.

New Paltz gave itself six hits.

Sunday Schedule Of Local Nines

Following is the Sunday schedule for local nines:

Crystal Gardens vs. Port Ewen Firemen at Pan Am diamond on the Saugerties road at 2:30.

Connelly vs. Kalish A. C. at St. Remy.

Roundout Social Club vs. Kingston Senecas at Hasbrouck Park.

Stone Ridge vs. Walden Red Sox.

Shields Will Play Parker for Title

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP)—Frank Shields' drive toward his third title in as many weeks brought him up against tennis' latest "boy wonder," Frankie Parker, in the final round of the Meadow Club's 43rd invitation tournament today.

A tennis "veteran" at 22, Shields ruled the favorite over the 17-year-old holder of the national clay courts crown but a closely fought final was in prospect.

While Shields was trouncing Bryan M. Grant of Atlanta in the semi-finals yesterday, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2, Parker was subduing the defending champion and top-seeded player, Sidney B. Wood of New York, also in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Crystal Gardens Play Port Ewen

The game between the Crystal Gardens and Port Ewen Firemen will get underway immediately at the conclusion of the entertainment of the Port Ewen Firemen's drum corps, which will play and drill for the entertainment of the fans. The drum corps will begin its performance at 2:30.

This is Port Ewen's debut into what might be called high circles of baseball. The Crystal Gardens will be a good test for the Port team's strength and right to play in better field of competition.

All Stars Ready For Verplanck Legion Nine

Although the Verplanck Legion team has one of the best reputations of any squad to meet the Kingston All Stars, Sunday afternoon on the Fair Grounds, the locals feel confident that its chances are first rate.

Verplanck holds two wins over the Peekskill Pros and the Pros in turn hold two victories over the All Stars, but past experiences has proven that records have little weight on the outcome of games.

It is expected that a record crowd will witness the game.

Connelly Nine Meets Kalish A. C. Sunday

The Connelly representatives will meet the Kalish A. C. Sunday afternoon on the St. Remy diamond. Ed Scherer will do the batters on the mound for Connelly.

POULTRY

HEN'S SKELETON NO EGG-LAYING GUIDE

Early Maturity and Mating Dates Important

Structure of the skeleton of the hen has nothing to do with her egg-laying ability, and therefore should be disregarded when culling poor layers from the flock, according to recent experiments reported by R. E. Cray, extension specialist in the department of poultry husbandry at the Ohio State university.

The experiments were conducted by scientists on the staff of the United States Department of Agriculture. Measurements were made of the length, breadth and depth of the head, the skull, and the back; of length of the keel and of brain capacity, of several thousand hens.

No relation was found to exist between skeletal measurements and egg-laying ability.

Other characteristics proved important guides. The age that a pullet begins to lay had an important effect on production. Six months was the best age for leghorns and seven months for the heavy breeds. Early maturing birds laid most eggs, but those that laid too early, produced many small eggs.

In the yellow-fleshed breeds pigmentation of the shanks and beak was found significant. By June the yellow color of the beak and shanks had faded if the hen was laying well.

Birds that molted late, and quickly recovered from their first molt, laid most eggs. Birds that molted before September made poor records. So called beakness of the head was shown to be undesirable. The other important guide was the general health of the hen.

Poultrymen Are Warned of Unsatisfactory Acid

Hydrochloric acid is worthless as a cure for range disease, coccidiosis, and tapeworm, according to E. L. Burnett of the New York state college of veterinary medicine. Range disease, he explains, is a paralysis which occurs among growing chickens during the latter part of the range period. It invariably affects the legs, sometimes the wings, and occasionally causes blindness. Autopsies have shown that a definite nervous disorder causes the paralysis. Tapeworms, coccidiosis, and nutritional disturbances may be responsible to some extent, and when they occur, along with the nervous disorder, they seem to intensify it. Range disease, unaccompanied by parasite and nutritional disturbances, is not always serious and untreated flocks may recover without serious loss.

Cod liver oil of good quality, fed in sufficient quantities, prevents paralysis due to rickets in housed pullets. Summer sunshine seems sufficient for pullets on the range. Proper management of the flock controls parasite and nutritional troubles; but since nervous disorder is not yet clearly understood, complete recommendation for its control cannot be given.

Poultry Facts

The higher the blunt end of the egg rises out of water, the older the egg is.

Perhaps the two most important necessities of poultry are pure, clean water and well-ventilated houses.

A very cheap but satisfactory laying house for pullets can be made from baled straw, either rye or fax.

About 11 per cent of the weight of an egg is the shell as compared with about 32 per cent for the yolk and 57 per cent for the white.

It will be found that hens in their second year often accumulate fat about the egg organs, causing shell-less, double-yolked and misshapen eggs.

Of the 1,190 pullets entered in the two western New York laying tests, 880 were White Leghorns, 150 Rhode Island Reds, and 110 Barred Plymouth Rocks.

A hen laying 150 eggs a year is worth three times as much as one laying 90 eggs.

Egg producers of Missouri have instituted a campaign for the production of higher quality eggs and for selling eggs on a graded basis.

Size of eggs laid by well-grown hens is entirely a matter of breeding and cannot be controlled by so simple a means as selecting large eggs for hatching.

The Kentucky experiment station has advised that turkeys are best fattened on old corn instead of new corn.

Copperas is not a worm remedy for poultry. It is sometimes fed to chickens but it has no value, excepting as it may be used in a mineral feed.

Be sure to supply the birds with green stuff while they are in confinement. Fluffy cut blue grass, clover or alfalfa leaf meal will serve a useful purpose. If you are lawn clipping, be sure they are short.

Ways of Monkeys Copied by Both Men and Women

When you feel an overpowering impulse to pick a loose thread off someone else's coat even if he is a total stranger to you, you needn't be ashamed of it, unconventional though the action may be. For you are only acknowledging your ancestry, muses a writer in the Montreal Herald. Grooming, the activity we see in the monkey cage when its inhabitants go carefully over each other's fur, picking out thorns or parasites, smoothing down hair, and in general making its neighbor pretty is a basic action pattern in all the primates from the lower monkey-like mammals up to man himself.

The grooming habit is inborn and hereditary, rather than something which one monkey (or man) learns from another. The case is cited of a young chimpanzee kept isolated from all its kind from infancy onward, which nevertheless developed the grooming tendency.

In man, the grooming tendency has the most complex expressions. The activities of barber, hair-dresser, nurse, physician, surgeon, fundaments in the grooming behavior of the chimpanzee.

Bill's Mistake

By LOUISE LANGDALE

© by Louise Langdale, Syndicated.

BILL BRADLEY untrapped his belt and hung it into the air. "Heigho!" he exclaimed, recapturing it. "One more fight under instruction and I'll be allowed to solo. Wonder who'll take me tomorrow—not that it makes much difference," he added. He knew just how much difference it was going to make.

The next morning when he reported at the Middlesex airport, run by a retired major from Washington, Bill found a marked absence of activity.

"Where is everybody?" he asked. "Air meet, sir, in Northport. The boss left word you were to go up with Miss Willmott. Said she'd be waiting at No. 2 hangar."

Bill did not know Lida Willmott, but he had heard of her as an extremely capable, fearless pilot. In spite of her reputation, however, Bill wasn't keen about taking his last bit of instruction from a woman.

Strolling down to No. 2 hangar, he found a slim, knickered, belted figure adjusting goggles, drawing on gloves. There was little of her face to be seen beyond a slightly upturned nose and a rather fetching, firm little chin.

"I presume you are waiting for me," said Bill.

"I presume I am," remarked the slim figure, gravely impersonally.

He took off gracefully. So far, so good. His able companion he felt could have done no better.

Little by little, Bill, who was a born flyer, began—absurdly, of course—to resent the presence of one who was undoubtedly, so he felt, criticizing his technique, and that one a woman. An obsession seized him to show off before her. Later, he might recognize this desire as the primitive urge of the male to strut before the female and be properly ashamed. But for the moment, he allowed himself to be carried away by it.

Higher and higher he mounted, turned and came up into the wind, dipped earthward and recovered, pulled a side-slipping stunt his instructor had showed him yesterday.

Suddenly, he felt a touch on his shoulder. His companion was handing him a tiny folded note.

"Can you loop the loop?"

So she was trying him out, was she? Bill looped the loop for her, not once but several times. Ah, how he loved it—this flying! The great earth spread out below in queer patches that were sometimes cities, sometimes country, sometimes ocean. The feeling that he was at one with the birds, the winds, the stars, with anything not earthbound. If ever he met a girl who felt about flying as he did.

He remembered that another task was still before him, that of making a graceful landing. Nothing more marked the type than to come in on one wheel or trailing a wing.

Spiraling above the field, he saw several black specks moving about with an activity similar to that ascribed to molecules. The specks resolved themselves into human beings and an automobile very much like the one belonging to the major who, Bill fervently trusted, was attending the air meet.

The major was a conservative old cuss, all for safety first and no stunt flying.

Bill's joy in a perfect three-point landing was spoiled by the fact that the major was not at the air meet but beside the hangar, unmistakably waiting for Bill as he taxied to a standstill.

Bill read in the major's face that he was in for no ordinary reprimand. What a mistake he had made, showing off before a woman he had never seen before.

He stepped out and turned to assist his companion. The major grabbed his arm.

"What in—Heaven's name do you mean?"

His words were choked by the startling action of Bill's recent flying partner who flung her arms about the major's neck. "Don't scold him. You promised me—"

"I promised you I'd send somebody competent to take you up, not a young whipper snapper without any license. What do you mean, young man, by nearly killing my niece?"

"Your niece?" Bill looked blank. "I didn't know Miss Willmott was your niece!"

The major became, if possible, more apologetic in countenance. "Who said Miss Willmott was my niece? Who said anything about Miss Willmott? My niece comes on her from Washington crazy to fly. I bring her out here and tell her to wait until I get somebody to take her up. Come back to wait with a young fool trying to break her neck."

Bill stood abjectly twisting his helmet. Suddenly, he felt the pressure of a slender hand on his arm. "Be'll get over it," a soft voice whispered. "And—oh, it was wonderful! Next time—" she smiled and said no more. Bill thrilled. She would go again with him. She loved it as he did. And now he saw that besides a slightly upturned nose and a fetching, firm little chin she had two eyes as softly blue as the sky itself.

The gross weight of an ocean vessel is determined by the amount of cubic feet of her cleared-in space divided by 100. The ton in this case is a unit of capacity, 100 cubic feet being equivalent to a ton. The net tonnage is computed by deducting from the gross tonnage the space occupied by engines, fuel, quarters and other places not devoted to cargo carrying.
